Farrokh Shahamiri left the meeting at this time.

8. DIVISION REPORTS

See staff report attached hereto.

Director of Engineering Brian Smith provided a status update regarding the flume relocation project by Shea Homes as part of its Hidden Valley Estates development. Mr. Smith stated that recordation of the easement is pending and that the reimbursement agreement is being finalized and ready for presentation to the Board.

Operations and Field Services Manager Frank Wolinski provided clarification regarding 78 water meters that were recently replaced. He stated that most were either stopped meters or meters equipped with "Firefly" radio read devices that are being replaced by meters equipped with Itron Encoder Receiver Transmitters (ERTs). Mr. Wolinski said that there are approximately 600 more Cycle 9 (monthly read) meters equipped with Firefly devices to be replaced.

9. WARNER-CARRILLO RANCH HOUSE BARN RESTORATION UPDATE

See staff report attached hereto.

Mr. Coox provided background regarding the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House (WCRH) barn, which is adjacent to the ranch house. He talked about the stabilization of the barn, which was done between 2001 and 2005, characterizing its condition as being in a state of arrested decay. Mr. Coox said that the ranch house, which was restored in 2013, is open to the public and being operated by the Save Our Heritage Organisation (SOHO). He said that the number of visitors to the WCRH has been low, and the District has been discussing ideas with SOHO for its promotion, especially as an educational destination for school children.

Mr. Coox reviewed some of the terms of the District's agreement with SOHO, stating that the responsibility for major structural repairs of the WCRH lies with the District, and the responsibility for day-to-day maintenance and upkeep lies with SOHO. He said that in order to completely restore the WCRH compound, the next logical step would be to restore the barn. Mr. Coox talked about the historical significance of the WCRH barn, which at one time housed the stagecoaches for the Butterfield Stage Line. He noted that the barn, which was built over an exposed adobe corral, is the only remaining structure from that time period in San Diego County with original hand-hewn timbers.

Mr. Coox said that the next opportunity to apply for a grant from the California Cultural and Historical Endowment (CCHE) will be in 2017. He said that CCHE provided a $316,000 grant for the restoration of the WCRH, and he believes this past relationship will play in the District's favor when seeking a follow-up grant from CCHE for the barn. Mr. Coox handed out some informational booklets regarding the WCRH (attached hereto as Exhibit A).

It was noted that the WCRH barn could be restored to a number of different periods of its historical significance, and the cost of restoration will vary greatly depending on which period is selected. Mr. Coox said that the period of historic significance to which the barn would be restored will have to be determined prior to applying for a grant.

Director of Water Resources Don Smith said that he believes the next step for the District would be to meet with representatives from SOHO in early 2017 to devise a plan for applying for a grant from CCHE for the barn's restoration. Director Dorey expressed concern about investing District funds in a project where attendance is already suffering. Mr. Coox said that restoration of the barn is part of the overall historic preservation that the District, as owner and steward of the property, believed it was somewhat obligated to do. He added that restoration of the barn could provide flexibility to the site, providing people with a place to gather for fundraisers, weddings, and other events. Mr. Coox said that the District generates revenues from leases on the Warner Ranch, and those revenues could be a source of funds to make improvements at the WCRH site. The Board directed staff to move forward with meeting with SOHO and members of the original WCRH Restoration project team, and report back to the board in early 2017.

10. LOVE TAP! CAMPAIGN

Mr. Coox presented an overview of the District's Love Tap!® outreach campaign, which is aimed at promoting tap water as an inexpensive, safe, and healthy option for hydration. He handed out a Love Tap! campaign flyer (attached hereto as Exhibit B). Mr. Coox said that one way in which the District has tried to educate people about the benefits of drinking tap water is by making it easy and convenient for people to access drinking water through the installation of hydration stations at three schools in the Vista Unified School District (VUSD) and at two high-use City of Vista (City) facilities. He said the hydration stations at the schools have been well received and that VUSD is planning on installing hydration stations at all of its school sites, incorporating them in their branded nutrition program. Mr. Coox said that in an ongoing effort to spread the Love Tap! message, District staff has participated in various community events and has made presentations at various civic and community group meetings.

The Board acknowledged that by reaching out to school children the District is reaching out to the future customers of the District. The Board discussed the possibility of partnering with VUSD to install more units at other school sites and directed staff to explore ways in which the District could partner with VUSD and/or its parent groups to install additional hydration stations at school sites. Director MacKenzie suggested also expanding the Love Tap! program by reaching out to other nearby businesses in the business park with information about the program and hydration stations.

11. CSDA BYLAWS AMENDMENTS

See staff report attached hereto.

The Board noted that the proposed changes are mainly language clean-up and non-substantive.

16-06-55	Upon motion by Director Reznicek, seconded by Director Miller and unanimously carried (5 ayes: Miller, Vásquez, Dorey, Reznicek, and MacKenzie), the Board of Directors cast the District's vote in favor of adopting the proposed changes to the CSDA bylaws.

12. MATTERS PERTAINING TO THE ACTIVITIES OF THE SAN DIEGO COUNTY WATER AUTHORITY

See staff report attached hereto.

Director Miller reported that he was absent from the recent Water Authority board meeting. He said that he heard that the biggest discussion at the meeting was related to the upcoming rate hearing, which will take place on June 23. Mr. Coox commented that staff received a press release regarding the Water Authority's recent upgrade to a AAA bond rating. Director Miller said that this rating will allow the Water Authority to borrow money at a lower rate in the future.

13. REPORTS ON MEETINGS AND EVENTS ATTENDED BY DIRECTORS, AND AUTHORIZATION FOR DIRECTOR ATTENDANCE AT UPCOMING MEETINGS AND EVENTS

See staff report attached hereto.

Director Reznicek requested authorization to attend the CSDA Annual Conference, stating that his request was tentative, and he would inform staff of his final decision about attending as the date gets closer. Directors Miller and Reznicek both requested two nights lodging for the CSDA Conference, which might be cancelled later.

Director MacKenzie reported on her attendance at the CSDA Quarterly Dinner meeting, where the speaker was Christine DiDonato, founder of Career Revolution, Inc. Ms. DiDonato made an interesting presentation about current trends which are shaping the future workforce. Director MacKenzie also reported on her attendance at the CSDA Legislative Days event, commenting that there was an informative Legislators Panel which included Senator Hertzberg and Assembly Members Eggman, Chang, and Irwin. Director MacKenzie shared some legislative updates from the event.

President Vásquez and Director Dorey reported on their attendance at the recent meeting of the Council of Water Utilities (COWU) where David Gibson, Executive Officer of the San Diego Regional Water Control Board (Control Board) made a presentation outlining the goals of the Control Board. Some of the Control Board's primary goals are to protect the waters that can be used for municipal water supplies and to fashion a framework to implement measures that affect waters for use in a municipal supply.

President Vásquez and Director Dorey both requested to attend COWU on June 21 in Poway. President Vásquez said that his request was tentative, and he would inform staff of his final decision about attending at a later time. President Vásquez also requested to attend the Urban Water Institute Annual Water Conference in San Diego, August 24-26, 2016 with hotel accommodations.

Director MacKenzie requested to attend the CSDA Quarterly Dinner meeting on August 18 in Kearny Mesa. She also requested to attend the Urban Water Institute Annual Water Conference in San Diego, August 24-26.

16-06-56	Upon motion by Director Miller, seconded by Director Reznicek and unanimously carried (5 ayes: Miller, Vásquez, Dorey, Reznicek, and MacKenzie), the Board of Directors authorized Board member attendance at the following events: President Vásquez and Director Dorey to attend COWU on June 21 in Poway; Director Reznicek to attend the CSDA Annual Conference, October 10-12, in San Diego; President Vásquez to attend the Urban Water Institute Annual Water Conference, August 24-26, in San Diego with hotel accommodations; Director MacKenzie to attend the CSDA Quarterly Dinner meeting on August 18 in Kearny Mesa, and the Urban Water Institute Annual Water Conference, August 24-26 in San Diego.

STAFF REPORT

Agenda Item: 6.B

Board Meeting Date: June 1, 2016
Prepared By: Don Smith
Approved By: Roy Coox

SUBJECT: SURVEY OF SOUTHWESTERN WILLOW FLYCATCHER

RECOMMENDATION: Receive results of field surveys for Southwestern Willow Flycatcher (SWFL) on District land along the San Luis Rey River below Henshaw Dam, as performed by the United States Geological Survey (USGS) during 2015.

PRIOR BOARD ACTION: On June 3, 2015, the Board authorized the USGS to conduct field surveys, nest monitoring and color banding on District lands between mid-May and August annually from 2015 through 2019, with yearly status updates provided to the Board.

FISCAL IMPACT: None.

SUMMARY: The USGS conducted three (3) surveys for SWFL on District lands between June and August of 2015. In those surveys, 7 males and 6 females were observed. According to USGS biologists, this “is within the expected range of year-to-year fluctuation in a stable population”. Surveys for 2016 are ongoing at present, and surveys will continue through 2019 before a comprehensive report is prepared for the sponsoring agency, San Diego Association of Governments (SANDAG).

DETAILED REPORT: The SWFL is a small migratory songbird dependent on riparian habitat for breeding. It has been listed as endangered since 1995 under the Endangered Species Act. The USGS has received grant funding from SANDAG to study the SWFL in San Diego County between 2015 and 2019. Much of the San Luis Rey River corridor was designated by the US Fish and Wildlife Service as critical habitat for the SWFL in 2013. In particular, the upper San Luis Rey River below Henshaw Dam is believed to contain the largest population of SWFL in California (roughly 20 pairs), and is thought to support about half the known flycatchers in the state. The District owns lands below Henshaw Dam that include about one linear mile of riparian habitat.

ATTACHMENTS: None.

STAFF REPORT

Board Meeting Date: June 1, 2016
Prepared By: Lisa Soto

SUBJECT: RESOLUTION COMMENDING RETIRING VID GENERAL MANAGER ROY COOX

RECOMMENDATION: That the Board adopt a resolution honoring Roy A. Coox, General Manager, for twenty-one years of service to the District and its customers.

PRIOR BOARD ACTION: None.

FISCAL IMPACT: None.

SUMMARY: General Manager Roy Coox will retire with twenty-one years of service to the District and its customers on June 2, 2016. The District would like to honor Roy by passing the attached resolution.

DETAILED REPORT: Roy started his career with VID on June 5, 1995 as the Assistant General Manager, and on December 29, 2007 he was promoted to General Manager of the District. Some of the prominent projects that Roy led in his early years with the District, were projects which proved to be true turning points for the District, such as creating a much needed Information Systems department which led to the standardization of all District computers, and writing and implementing policies which did not previously exist in any formal format. He assumed the role of Trustee for the Hans and Margaret Doe Charitable Trust and he was instrumental in relocating administration of the scholarships with the San Diego Foundation. Roy enthusiastically took on the challenge of restoring the District-owned Historic State and National Landmark, the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House, which was in a severely dilapidated state. With limited District funding for the project, he managed to obtain over half a million dollars in grants and donations to fully restore the house for future generations to experience.

Roy's unique ability to understand complicated issues from every perspective, clearly communicate and negotiate, and promote consensus building have all been key elements to his success as General Manager of the District. His hands-on negotiations and countless hours of dedication were both instrumental in finally bringing settlement to the 47-year-old San Luis Rey Indian water rights dispute between the District, Escondido, and five Indian bands. Through his forward-thinking strategies and win-win philosophy, Roy was able to negotiate and execute a water purchase agreement with the City of Oceanside for treated water from the Weese Filtration Plant. This additional water supply will benefit the District's customers for many years to come. As an example of Roy's exemplary leadership, dedication, and vision, he developed and launched an innovative outreach campaign to promote drinking tap water instead of bottled water. Roy created the unique name and trademark for the campaign called Love Tap! and he negotiated partnerships with the City of Vista and the Vista Unified School District to install hydration stations in strategic locations throughout the community.

Roy's leadership of the District has been unsurpassed. His desire to always do what is right, and to act in the best interest of the District, has benefitted the District's employees and customers in countless ways, both now and in the years to come.

RESOLUTION NO. 16-XX

RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF
VISTA IRRIGATION DISTRICT
HONORING ROY A. COOX
FOR TWENTY-ONE YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE DISTRICT

WHEREAS, Roy A. Coox has faithfully served the public for 35 years, beginning with successful tenures at the City of San Diego and the Encina Wastewater Authority, and then joining the Vista Irrigation District (VID) in 1995 as Assistant General Manager and ultimately being appointed General Manager of the District in 2007; and

WHEREAS, in this capacity, Roy provided executive oversight to all aspects of the District, including reaching out to and working with customers to achieve all District water conservation targets during multiple droughts, particularly during the recent Statewide water emergency declaration; and also including hands-on negotiations resulting in an agreement and settlement to the 46-year-old San Luis Rey Indian water rights dispute between the Local Entities (VID and Escondido) and five Indian bands. As part of the water rights settlement, Roy's unique ability to negotiate and problem solve helped obtain a power license conduit exemption from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, saving the District hundreds of thousands of dollars in application renewal costs; and

WHEREAS, thanks to Roy's forward-thinking strategies, significant accomplishments were made that will continue to benefit the District and its customers well into the future, including negotiating and executing a water purchase agreement with the City of Oceanside for treated water from the Weese Filtration Plant, thereby securing an additional water supply at considerable savings for the District's customers; implementing an innovative water rate structure tied to meter sizes and actual costs, well ahead of the court ruling making such cost-based rate structures mandatory; becoming a founding member of the North County Water Reuse Coalition, in order to cooperate with other agencies to develop and distribute recycled water for the benefit of customers; and completing a solar power project to provide "green" energy at the District headquarters; and

WHEREAS, Roy displayed perseverance, diligence and passion in obtaining over half a million dollars in grants and donations to finally fulfill the decades-long desire of the Board and the District to restore the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House, a National and State historic landmark. This restoration project earned awards such as the Governor's Historic Preservation Award from the State of California, the Preservation Design Award from the California Preservation Foundation, and the Historic Preservation and Divine Detail Awards from the American Institute of Architects. Roy was personally named Preservationist of the Year by the Save Our Heritage Organisation of San Diego for his work to preserve this important historical landmark for the enjoyment and education of generations to come; and

WHEREAS, Roy has been instrumental in establishing a culture of innovation and commitment at the District among his workforce, as demonstrated by his combining responsible budgeting and staffing with reorganizations and promotional opportunities that have improved morale and productivity; and by implementing the innovative FISH Philosophy that promotes fun, teamwork and positive engagement in the workplace as components of enhanced organizational efficiency and effectiveness. In addition to maximizing cost savings and revenue generation opportunities, Roy has demonstrated personal leadership, dedication and astute financial judgment as evidenced by his selflessly declining to take a predetermined four percent salary increase during the Recession in 2011, resulting in significant compounded savings to the District in the form of salary, benefits and pension costs; and

WHEREAS, through his exemplary leadership, dedication and vision, Roy developed, launched, and trademarked the innovative Love Tap! outreach campaign to promote drinking tap water instead of bottled water by the public, with promotional emphasis targeted at the local schools and city facilities through the installation of “hydration stations” in strategic high-traffic locations. Roy also served the community as a founding member of the Vista High Noon Rotary Club, the local water community as Treasurer of the Council of Water Utilities, and the statewide water community as Trustee of the Hans and Margaret Doe Charitable Trust, and as a member of the Liability Committee for the Association of California Water Agencies Joint Powers Insurance Authority (ACWA-JPIA); and

WHEREAS, Roy’s hard work and outstanding achievements received Statewide acclaim when he was named the 2012 General Manager of the Year for the state of California by the California Special Districts Association (CSDA). Roy’s commitment and dedication to the well-being of his employees and to serving and communicating with the public resulted in other awards such as the 2013 CSDA Innovative Project of the Year Award for the District’s Workforce Planning and Career Development Program; the 2013 U-T San Diego Top Workplace award; and the 2012 ACWA Outstanding Outreach Participation Award. In addition, the District has consistently received both the District of Distinction Accreditation and the District Transparency Certification, from the Special Districts Leadership Foundation since these programs’ inception; and

WHEREAS, Roy has continually demonstrated a remarkable service ethic and dedication to the District, the water industry, the community, and his family.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Board of Directors of the Vista Irrigation District does hereby extend its deep gratitude and appreciation to Roy Coox for 21 years of exemplary achievements, outstanding service, and selfless dedication to the Vista Irrigation District and does heartily extend best wishes that his retirement be characterized by peace, prosperity, health and longevity.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the following roll call vote of the Board of Directors of Vista Irrigation District this 1st day of June 2016.

- 06/21/2000 Directed staff to investigate funding opportunities to restore the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House (WCRH) and Barn and authorized the expenditure of a reasonable amount of matching funds if significant grant funding were to be secured. .
- 02/07/2001 Approved the grant agreement with the State Office of Historic Preservation to provide funding for the structural stabilization and seismic retrofit of the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House and Barn, as well as private funding through the San Diego Foundation.
- 08/18/2010 Approved the grant agreement with the State of California Cultural and Historical Endowment (CCHE) that finally provided the needed funds and approved a design/build contract with IS Architecture and Mark Sauer Construction for the complete restoration of the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House.
- 10/17/ 2012 Received a report on the completion of the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House restoration project.

FISCAL IMPACT: The scope of the potential WCRH barn restoration project is not well defined at this time, but it is the opinion of the Executive Director of the Save Our Heritage Organisation (SOHO), which has extensive experience in similar historic preservation work, that the cost of design and construction will likely range between $350,000 and $600,000. It is expected that more than 50% of that cost would be offset by matching grants, resulting in an estimated contribution by the District of up to $300,000.

SUMMARY: Culminating many years of effort, the District was pleased to celebrate the grand opening of the newly restored Warner-Carrillo Ranch House on June 1, 2013. The associated historic barn, however, was not renovated with this project, but remains in a state of suspended decay following the structural stabilization that was performed between 2001 and 2005 (see photos, attached). For many years, the District has desired to renovate the barn, which housed stagecoaches for the Butterfield Stage Line, as well as the ranch house to provide a completely restored WCRH compound reflective of its importance in history. Both structures were constructed in the 1850's, and the WCRH barn is the only remaining such structure from that time period in San Diego County with original hand-hewn timbers. The barn is a large wooden structure that was built over an exposed adobe corral, and architectural and historical assessments would need to be conducted to determine the ultimate look and composition of the restored barn.

Under the terms of its 2011 Agreement with the District, SOHO continues to maintain, curate, and operate the WCRH as a house museum open to the public for selected hours on weekends throughout the year. SOHO has supported the concept of renovating the WCRH barn, and is expected to take a major role in developing restoration plans and preparing the grant application package. The District and SOHO are hopeful that a renovated barn will provide an enhanced visitor experience and allow greater opportunities for events based at the WCRH.

The California Cultural and Historical Endowment (CCHE) provided $316,000 of grant funding for the restoration of the ranch house in 2011 and 2012. While CCHE did not offer historic preservation grants in 2016, it is expected that they will offer them again, with the next round of applications expected to be due in September of 2017. Our successful execution of the previous CCHE grant is felt to increase the likelihood of being awarded a subsequent grant. If supported by the Board, Staff proposes to meet with our project team, likely to include SOHO, plus an historic restoration contractor and architect, in the Spring of 2017 to develop a strategy for preparing a successful CCHE grant application package.

DETAILED REPORT: Since 2000, the District has invested in the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House as follows:

- 2001 $75,000 (in order to match $75,000 in funding from private donations to secure a $150,000 grant from the State Office of Historic Preservation) for the structural stabilization and seismic retrofit of the adobe ranch house and historic barn.
- 2011 $190,000 (with another $316,000 from the CCHE grant) for the restoration of the adobe ranch house.
- 2012 $333,000 (funded out of the Ranch Improvement Fund established through the District's grazing lease) for the construction of a water well, 10,000 gallon water storage tank, piping, new septic system, and the new ADA compliant restroom and parking. (The new water and septic systems are shared with the adjacent facilities of the District's cattle grazing lessee; the ADA compliant restroom and parking were permit conditions from the County of San Diego.)
- 2015 $10,000 for the repair of the corrugated metal roofing of the barn in advance of expected El Nino rains.

Not counting shared infrastructure, the District has contributed somewhat less than one-third of the cost of the ranch house restoration and barn stabilization.

Additionally, the District pays monthly electrical costs for the WCRH and associated well, periodic termite inspections and treatment, and provides staff time in support of all these activities. According to our operating agreement, SOHO provides ongoing maintenance, non-structural repairs, and, most importantly, staffing to keep the ranch house and museum open to the public as per the grant requirements from the State.

The District has received numerous awards and accolades for its stewardship of the WCRH, including:

- Preservation Design Award, California Preservation Foundation, 2009
- Preservationist of the Year Award, Save Our Heritage Organisation, 2012
- Governor's Historic Preservation Award, State of California, 2012
- Historic Preservation "Project of the Year" Award, American Public Works Association, San Diego Chapter, 2013
- Historic Preservation and "Divine Detail" Awards, American Institute of Architects, San Diego Chapter, 2013

CROSSROADS OF EARLY CALIFORNIA: THE WARNER-CARRILLO RANCH HOUSE

History

Located in the heart of a picturesque valley in northeastern San Diego County, a proud dwelling stands as a lonely sentinel guarding the historic westward passageway into California. Withstanding nature's elements and the passage of years, this structure has seen glory days as a major trading post, stagecoach stop, and ranching headquarters. Today, it rests in the shadow of the county's tallest mountain, awakening from its slumber to once again be a proud and welcoming sight for weary travelers.

The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House represents a crossroads, both literally and figuratively, in the history of the Old West. Located at the fork where the main overland trail into California split toward San Diego to the south and Los Angeles, San Francisco and the gold fields to the north, this place represents the convergence not only of the westward trails into California but, more importantly, of the historic themes relating to settlers, Native Americans, Hispanics, and women in American history.

Warner's Ranch, most of which remains intact today, serves as a landmark in the history of the American West. The Ranch House and Barn are associated with several historic themes, including the Mexican and American culture contact during the Mexican Republic; the frontier period in American westward migration, trade and settlement; women's roles in the western frontier; Indian, Mexican, and American relations; military operations associated with the United States Army and the Mormon Battalion during the Mexican-American War as well as during the Civil War; and the Gold Rush period and California statehood. Due to its critical location both historically and geographically, perhaps nowhere else in the West did so many people, influences and events converge. In addition to the Native Americans and the original Mexican Californio settlers, it is estimated that over 250,000 American settlers visited the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House during the westward migration. It can be said that virtually every person who resides in Southern California today has a link to this magnificent landmark.

Past Owners

Jonathan Trumbull Warner, a former California State Senator, owned the ranch house in the 1840's and 1850's when it was a camping stop on the Gila Overland Trail to California. Burned during an Indian uprising in 1851, the ranch house was rebuilt by the Carrillo family who occupied it until 1868. The ranch house served as a Butterfield Overland Mail Stage Station from 1858-1861. The structure was modified in the 1890's to house the ranch foremen for the Vail Ranch. The ranch house and barn served as ranch headquarters, bunkhouse and storeroom for major cattle ranching operations until the 1960's.

Today

The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House has been called a "national treasure" and is a registered National Historic Landmark and a California State Historic Landmark. The Save Our Heritage Organization in San Diego in the year 2000 called the ranch house site "the most important unprotected historical site in San Diego County." The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House represents one of the few remaining examples of Mexican period adobes in California, and the barn is the only hand-hewn timber barn still standing in San Diego County. The house is a unique Mexican period adobe with wooden extensions, and the barn contains the remains of an original adobe corral. The interior of the house contains unique wood planking and stretched canvas ceilings called mantas.

The ranch house is one of the few remaining landmarks associated with unique historical groups and events, such as the Mormon Battalion and the Butterfield Stage. The restored ranch house in its strategic location can be an educational destination for all types of visitors, particularly the thousands of schoolchildren throughout Southern California in their study of California history.

The Project

Thanks primarily to grants and donations, the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House has been restored to its period of historical significance in the mid to late 1800's. Restoration of the ranch house has allowed the building to be opened to and experienced by the public for the first time.

The wooden floors, adobe walls and metal roof have been rebuilt. Several crafts were called upon to restore the windows, doors, porches, surface finishes, etc., along with the historical manta ceilings.

The historic barn has been preserved in a state of arrested decay through permanent wooden structural bracing, replacing makeshift cables and turnbuckles holding the building together. Barn preservation has allowed the structure to be opened for viewing, and enabled restoration efforts to focus on the ranch house.

Future Phases

In addition to the physical restoration, the project restoration plan includes furnishing the house with period furniture and establishing an interpretive center where visitors can learn about and experience the historical themes associated with the ranch house, barn and surrounding cattle ranch.

Future plans also call for parking areas and walkways, lighting, landscaping, and signage to improve access and the quality of the visitor's experience, as well as full restoration of the historic barn.

THE MANY FACES OF THE WARNER-CARRILLO RANCH HOUSE

The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House represents a crossroads, literally and figuratively, in the history of the American West. Located at the fork where the main overland trail into California split toward San Diego to the south and Los Angeles, San Francisco and the gold fields to the north, the house served as a strategic trading post and stagecoach stop during its heyday in the mid to late 1800's. Due to its critical location both historically and geographically, perhaps nowhere else in the West did so many people, influences and events converge. The ranch house and its environs boast a wonderfully rich history of diverse and fascinating personalities who became either inhabitants or visitors. These people, and the historical events which occurred around them, form a vibrant backdrop to the current effort to restore this national treasure to its original glory. Virtually every person who resides in Southern California today has a link to the people and events which are embodied in this significant landmark.

These are the many people whose faces haunt the rooms of this adobe ranch house. The people described herein shared common experiences and a common historical thread throughout the twenty or so years of the mid-nineteenth century, each of them associated with Warner's ranch and the ranch house. Today, as the house rests on a scenic and winding road at the same junction once critical to so many travelers, the crumbling adobe walls and fallen timbers belie its proud history. Close your eyes and perhaps you too can picture the faces and relive the conversations and adventures of the people who long ago lived and visited here.

THE WESTWARD SETTLER

Jonathan Trumbull Warner

Jonathan Trumbull Warner was born in Connecticut in 1807. Facing health problems from the Eastern winters, Warner headed west at age 23 to seek his fortune and a milder climate. He passed through the Valle de San Jose (which would eventually become known as Warner's Ranch) in 1831 on his way to Los Angeles, where he became a merchant. California was under Mexican control at the time, and Warner became fluent in Spanish and befriended the local Californios, one of whom was Pio Pico (who later became the territorial governor). Through this friendship, Warner met and married Anita Gale, the daughter of an English sea captain who had been raised in the Pico household.

In 1840, the Pico family acquired a grant of land in the Valle de San Jose in the area of Agua Caliente, so named for the hot springs located there (later known as Warner Springs), but eventually abandoned the land due to problems with the native Americans living there. Remembering the scenic valley he traversed on his westward voyage, Warner applied for a new grant for ownership of this rancho. In order to become eligible for land ownership, he went to San Diego to become a naturalized Mexican citizen, and changed his name to Juan Jose Warner. He was able to arrange this grant title, and also for another abandoned land grant at the southern end of the valley, and became the owner of 48,000 acres which became known as Warner's Ranch.

Juan Jose and Anita Warner moved from Los Angeles to their new property in 1844, where they first lived near the hot springs while they completed their ranch house and trading post. Upon moving into the new residence in 1846, Warner immediately established a successful trading post for weary transcontinental travelers, and became renowned for his business acumen and hearty conversation. Warner ran a prosperous operation until 1851, when a regionwide Indian uprising began with an attack on his ranch house. Warner, who had sent his family to safety but had misjudged the size of the attacking force, which numbered more than one hundred, was left to defend his house with one hired hand and an Indian boy. Although the hired hand was killed, Warner made an inspired charge from the ranch house to the barn, shooting and killing four of his attackers and managing to escape with the boy. Although the Indian raiders proceeded to loot and burn his house and trading post, Warner was thereafter referred to as "Colonel".

After the burning of his house and trading post, Warner never again resided at the ranch which would continue to bear his name. Financially bankrupt, he moved back to Los Angeles, became the editor of his own weekly newspaper, and also became a California State Congressman. He eventually lost his ranch to foreclosure and legal judgments by the United States Land Commission. This was the beginning of a series of failed business dealings for Warner, but he remained a respected statesman to his last days. He was elected the first president of the Historical Society of Southern California in 1883. Jonathan Trumbull (J.J.) Warner passed away in 1895 at the age of 88.

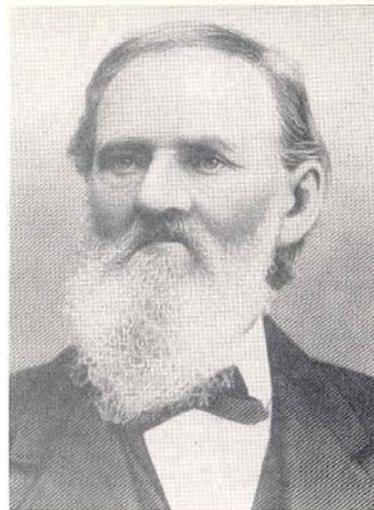

Although Jonathan Trumbull Warner was the first American to settle in the beautiful Valle de San Jose, becoming its most famous resident and lending his name to the region, he merely touched off a wave of American westward migration on the southern route into California through Warner's Pass (otherwise known as the San Felipe Valley). This westward movement of settlers to California gained momentum over time through the discovery of gold, the development of a wagon trail, and the advent of the stagecoach. The trickle of westward settlers seeking fortune, adventure and a new life via the Gila Overland Trail in the 1840's became a deluge after California became part of the United States and gold was discovered near Sacramento in 1848. Warner's ranch house and trading stop became a critical destination for weary travelers navigating the overland trail into Southern California. As the northern alternatives entailed overcoming high mountains and nasty weather, this route through Santa Fe, Yuma and ultimately Warner's Pass became the favored route to California.

It has been estimated that 80,000 people traveled past and stopped at Warner's ranch house during the gold rush alone, with perhaps 250,000 travelers passing through the ranch before the end of the century. The ranch house was the first mercantile establishment after leaving Santa Fe, New Mexico, and the first haven after crossing a thousand miles of barren desert. It was the first place where weary travelers really saw hope, after so many of them had despaired and died attempting to cross the desert. When they reached Warner's ranch, they found green trees, water and the will to go on. This strategic location became marked conspicuously on all overland trail maps. In fact, many maps of that period list only these locations on the entire southwestern portion of the trail: Santa Fe, Warner's, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

In 1858, Warner's ranch and the adobe trading post then operated by the Carrillo family became a critical stage stop for the newly formed Butterfield Stage Line. Butterfield stages regularly and efficiently completed a 2,800-mile route from Tipton, Missouri to San Francisco in twenty-five days. The stages carried passengers, freight, and, during its time, more mail to California than all of the seafaring ships combined. The Butterfield Line operated until 1861 when the outbreak of the Civil War forced its termination.

THE FRONTIER WOMAN

Maria Vicenta Sepulveda de Yorba de Carrillo (1813-1907)

Maria Vicenta Sepulveda was born in 1813 and raised in the Los Angeles area. In 1834, Vicenta married Tomas Antonio Yorba, a man twenty-six years her senior, who operated a ranch and store in Santa Ana. The business became quite successful, and Don Tomas and Doña Vicenta became renowned for their opulence and hospitality during this rancho period of California history. Vicenta's beauty and elegance impressed many a visitor to the Yorba ranch. Their marriage produced six children before Tomas died in 1844.

Widowed at age 31, Vicenta inherited the couple's considerable wealth and property and continued to manage the ranching and mercantile operations successfully. In 1847, she married Jose

Ramon Carrillo, a dashing rancher and military man who lived with her first at the Yorba ranch in Santa Ana and later at the ranch house they built at the old Warner's Ranch. This marriage produced eight children, two of them being born at the ranch house.

After the murder of her husband, Doña Vicenta was widowed once again, at the age of 51, with eight children between four and fifteen years of age living with her. She successfully managed her large ranch until 1869, when she sold her holdings in the Valle de San Jose and moved to Anaheim, where she lived with her family until her death in 1907 at the age of 94.

Maria Vicenta Sepulveda de Yorba de Carrillo (center front)

Although an anomaly for the times, the strong frontier woman in the nineteenth century was by necessity self-sufficient, organized, and able to take care of herself. Women typically came to the frontier through marriage or inheritance, and the men in their lives were often absent, incapacitated, or dead. These stories of women who managed farms and ranches, raised children, and protected their families from Indians, outlaws, and wild animals are as uplifting and inspiring as they are unusual.

In Californio society of the early 1800's, women held a place of respect. Although restricted from most areas of public life, including education, women helped in farms, ranches and businesses. Many women were just as accomplished equestrians as men. And Californio law, unlike in America, allowed women to own property through inheritance. (This tradition of women's rights continued into American rule of California, where the first State constitution included a provision for married women to control their own property, which was unusual at the time.)

Still, a woman running a major ranching operation and business was extremely unusual for the mid-1800's, but that is exactly what Doña Vicenta Carrillo was doing at her ranch house at Warner's from 1857 to 1869. During the continual absence of her husband, Don Ramon, and after his death in 1864, Doña Vicenta had to manage on her own. She represented the epitome of the beautiful, intelligent and competent Californio woman who was managing a ranch and household while serving meals and selling supplies to the drivers and passengers of the Butterfield Stage Line as well as numerous other overland travelers. After her husband's death, with help only from her 21-year-old son, she ran a ranching operation on 13,500 acres with 600 sheep, 100 cattle, 50 horses and other animals, along with fields of barley, wheat and hay. And, unlike J.J. Warner, she was reported to have a very good relationship with the native California Indians. Her Indian workers moved to her ranch and established three villages close to the ranch house. During the smallpox epidemic of 1862, she moved the sick Indians into the adobe barn next to her house where she cared for them.

THE CALIFORNIO (Mexican) ADVENTURER

Jose Ramon Carrillo

Jose Ramon Carrillo was born in 1820 in San Diego. Upon his father's death while he was still a teenager, he moved with his family north of Sonoma where he helped operate a large ranching operation. There, Jose Ramon earned a reputation tending to cattle and managing Indian laborers, and became an accomplished equestrian and outdoorsman.

Legend had it in Sonoma County that Jose Ramon had confronted and killed a charging bear with a mere knife. He also put those pugilistic talents to use in military skirmishes, and Jose Ramon and his band of Californios acquired a notorious reputation. During the Mexican War, Jose Ramon participated in a series of major campaigns, including the bloodiest battle of the war, the Battle of San Pasqual, where the outnumbered Californios won a significant victory over the American army. Jose Ramon fought his final battle in 1847, when he led his forces in the battle known as the Temecula Massacre, where a contingent of Indians was annihilated to avenge the Pauma Massacre several months earlier, in which a group of Californios had been executed.

Later in 1847, the Californio Don Jose Ramon married Doña Vicenta Sepulveda de Yorba, a wealthy widow, and moved to her rancho in Santa Ana. In 1857, they built and moved to the ranch house located at a strategic crossroads on the southernmost part of J.J. Warner's disputed landholdings in the Valle de San Jose. The following year, Doña Vicenta acquired undisputed title to the house and a surrounding 18,000 acres. For the next six years, Don Ramon helped his wife manage the ranch and the Butterfield Stage Station. In 1861, upon the outbreak of the Civil War and the discontinuation of the Butterfield Line, he was employed as a scout and supplier for the Union Army by Major Edwin Rigg, the commander at nearby Camp Wright.

Don Ramon's enigmatic and questionable reputation accompanied him to his final days. A man named John

Rains, who had foreclosed on Warner's landholdings and had come to the valley to compete with the Carrillos for ranching lands and profits, was found murdered in late 1862. Although suspicion fell on Don Ramon, no evidence or charges were brought against him. However, in 1864, he was ambushed, shot and killed by an unknown assassin as he rode his horse alongside the widow Rains.

The group of people known as Californios were Spanish-speaking descendants of the original settlers who came from Spain or Mexico to California beginning in 1769. The Spanish established missions throughout California and took control of large tracts of land. In addition to missions, the Spanish established forts, called presidios, to guard the Spanish interests. Settlements, called pueblos, soon flourished outside the mission or presidio walls. After Mexico's independence from Spain in 1821, the government seized control of mission lands and Californios received large tracts of land. The Californios thereby became owners of large ranches, or ranchos, typically on the order of 10,000 to 100,000 acres apiece. These new Californio ranchers, or rancheros, became the backbone of the cattle ranching economy in California, and by 1850, 200 families owned 14 million acres of land. Californios were referred to as Don (and Doña), the old Spanish titles for the aristocratic class.

After Mexico's defeat in the Mexican-American War, California became a part of the United States and the Californios became American citizens. Although the Californios nominally retained their land rights, a tax law and land law were passed which stripped these rights away. The greatest harbinger of change, however, was the discovery of gold in California in 1848, the same year the war ended. As the influx of westward settlers converged on California, many of the original fortune seekers ended up competing with the Californios for title to their original landholdings. Over time, almost every single Californio rancho disappeared. By 1852, over 250,000 fortune seekers, mostly Americans, had settled in California, a large number of them passing through Warner's ranch. The Californios had clearly become the minority, and by the 1870's the Californio empire was gone.

However, these proud Californios were the ancestors of many of the Latino people living in California today. They pioneered industries which are still mainstays of the economy, such as citrus farming, winemaking, and cattle ranching. Their influence can be seen and felt throughout the state, from place names of the major cities and landmarks to architecture, food, and clothing. The Californio legacy lives through today's vibrant and dynamic Latino population.

THE NATIVE AMERICAN

Antonio Garra

Antonio Garra was the leader of the Cupeno Indians, who lived at the village of Cupa at the hot springs (Agua Caliente) in the Valle de San Jose (which eventually became part of Warner's Ranch). In 1847, the valley and his village passed from Mexican control to American control as part of the new territory of California, and in 1848 hordes of Americans started coming through the region as a result of the gold rush. The secularization of the traditional Indian lands, which had begun under the Mexican Californios and their large land grants, proceeded full bore under American rule. Besides infringing on the traditional Indian way of life, the Americans began a program of heavy taxation on Indian lands and cattle. With the county and the federal government insisting on more and more taxes, the San Diego County Sheriff confiscated the Cupeno's horses and cattle when they were unable to pay. Angered at this action and the continuing taxation and discrimination against the Indians, Garra organized an armed revolt of Cupeno and neighboring Indian tribes.

By early 1851, Garra saw an uprising as the only way to prevent what he saw as impending servitude and genocide for the Indians in California. Although the Cupenos were a small tribe, Garra was a visionary and charismatic leader. He attempted to forge a grand alliance of Indian tribes from the Central Valley to the Colorado River and Baja California. He formed a personal alliance with the leader of the Cahuilla Indians, and rumors spread that a combined force of thousands of Indians would attack throughout Southern California, with the Cahuillas leading the attack on Los Angeles while the Yuma Band would join forces with the Diegueño and Luiseño Indians to destroy San Diego.

Fearful for their lives, most of the Californios fled into San Diego, where General Joshua Bean prepared to defend against a major battle. Martial law was declared in San Diego.

After killing four Americans who had come to bathe at Agua Caliente, Garra's forces began their attack at Warner's ranch, where they stole all the cattle and burned the ranch house. Warner escaped to San Diego and spread word of the attack, and military defenses were prepared from San Diego to Los Angeles to the new Mormon settlement at San Bernardino. At the last minute, however, several Indian tribes backed down and the leader of the Cahuillas betrayed Garra, ambushed him and turned him over to the American military authorities. With the news of Garra's capture, the revolt quickly dissolved. An Army expeditionary force was dispatched and burned Garra's village at Agua Caliente, rounded up remaining hostile Indians in the area, and imposed onerous treaty terms on all the local tribes in the region. Garra was tried in San Diego, found guilty, and executed by a firing squad in 1852. With his death, Garra's dream of Indian independence in Southern California died with him.

When Juan Jose Warner applied for and received his land grant for the Valle de San Jose in 1844, he described the valley as being uninhabited. The truth was, of course, that the valley was not only inhabited by Native Americans but had been so for thousands of years. The main tribe in the valley was the Cupeños, who lived at their ancient village of Cupa, at the hot springs of Agua Caliente (now Warner Springs). Their territory included the mountains and valleys surrounding the springs, including Hot Springs Mountain, the highest point in San Diego County, and the area that is now the Los Coyotes Indian Reservation. Historic Cupeño society was centered around the extended family, and everyone worked together to hunt and gather food amongst the oak woodlands.

The Native Americans, or Indian tribes, of San Diego County are not well known to most people. The Spanish missionaries who came to the region named the Indian tribes by adding the suffix “-eño ” to the names of existing villages (the Cupeño, after the Village of Cupa) or to names of the closest missions (therefore, Diegueño after San Diego and Luiseño after San Luis Rey). These are the three main Indian tribal groupings, with the Cupeño being small in number while the Diegueño (now known by their traditional name, Kumeyaay) are relatively large. Within these groupings, tribes are identified mainly through linguistic and cultural differences. All of the Indians indigenous to San Diego County at the time of the missionaries are called Mission Indians.

Although Luiseño and Diegueño Indians lived and traveled close to or on Warner’s ranch, the population that was native to the valley was the Cupeño. Because of their isolated location, most Cupeños had little contact with the Spanish missions which were built in the late 1700’s. By the mid 1800’s, the Cupeños were grazing cattle and livestock, but some went to work at the Mission San Luis Rey in Oceanside, and many became hired labor for Warner’s ranch. They were treated adequately by Warner himself and, later, developed a good relationship with his successor, Dona Carrillo. (Warner did, however, take in some individual Cupeños who became loyal domestic servants. He also reportedly urged the Cupeños to build a fence around their village to separate their cattle and horses from his and, had this been done, it might have qualified them as a reservation and avoided later heartache.) After California’s annexation to the United States, westward migration began to greatly impact the Cupeño way of life, culminating in oppressive taxation that threatened to wipe out the tribe. An aborted uprising led by the Cupeño Chief, Antonio Garra, burned Warner’s trading post but was unsuccessful in uniting the region’s tribes in a military operation. In retaliation, American armed forces executed Garra and burned the village of Cupa.

As the population grew throughout the region, ranching operations expanded, and the popularity of the hot springs grew as a recreational destination for the Americans, the Cupeños were seen as trespassers on their own land. In 1903, the United States government evicted the Cupa Indians from their ancestral home and forcibly relocated them to the Pala Reservation, 75 miles downstream on the San Luis Rey River. This evacuation march from Cupa to Pala took three days; the Cupenos call this their “Trail of Tears”.

Today, the descendants of the Cupa and original Luiseño Indians live together on the Pala Reservation. Indians from the present-day reservations of Santa Ysabel and Mesa Grande are descendants of the Cupeños as well. Although the Pala tribe can be proud of their current successful Indian gaming operation, the members will never forget their proud history. Those who trace their ancestry to the Indians of Cupa still celebrate their heritage with an annual pilgrimage to their ancestral home at Warner Springs, to remember their Trail of Tears and to honor the spirit and sacrifices of their forefathers.

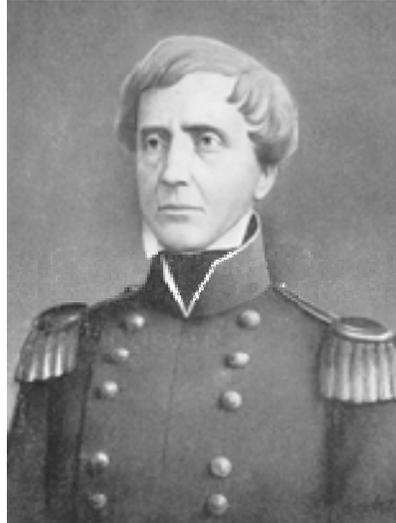

THE AMERICAN SOLDIER

Stephen Watts Kearny

(1794-1848)

Stephen Watts Kearny was born in 1794 in Newark, New Jersey and made a name for himself as an Army officer. When the Mexican-American War broke out in 1846, Kearny was named commander of the Army of the West. General Kearny left Fort Leavenworth, Kansas with 1600 men to secure Mexican territories on his way to California. After capturing Santa Fe, New Mexico, with little opposition, he proceeded on his way to California. En route, he was met by Army scout Kit Carson, who informed him, mistakenly, that California had been secured by the Americans and that there would be no organized opposition there. Kearny therefore proceeded with 200 men across the desert and through Warner's Pass to Warner's trading post, where he and his army camped. After learning of a Californio force ahead, he proceeded to the San Pasqual Valley, where he himself was wounded and his army suffered a decisive defeat.

After regrouping and reaching San Diego, Kearny combined forces with those under Commodore Stockton and fought their way to and occupied Los Angeles. Upon the end of the war, Kearny struggled for power with Stockton and Colonel John C. Fremont, but in the end was confirmed by Washington as the military governor of the new California territory. He served in this role until May 1847, when he was sent to Mexico to serve as governor of Veracruz and then Mexico City.

With America's westward expansion, quell native American uprisings, but also to capture Civil War secessionists, Mexico was growing rapidly. In 1846, the Mexican-American War broke out, and California soon became the ultimate prize. The Army of the West, under the command of General Stephen Watts Kearny, was ordered by President James Polk to conquer California. The Army left Santa Fe, New Mexico on October 6th, traversing a thousand miles of barren, inhospitable terrain before finally reaching Warner's ranch on December 2nd. Journals kept by some of Kearny's men indicate that they were in bad shape and nearly at the end of their means by the time they saw the trees, stream, and ranch house before them. It is doubtful that the Army would have survived their journey to California had it not been for the rest, food, provisions and hospitality they received at Warner's. Refreshed after their stop at Warner's ranch, the Army of the West proceeded toward San Diego, where two days later it was decisively defeated by the Californios at the Battle of San Pasqual.

The Army of the West eventually made its way to San Diego, where it joined with reinforcements and ultimately defeated the Californios and secured the territory for the United States. Many American soldiers and military detachments were to traverse Warner's ranch and neighboring regions over the next several decades, most notably to

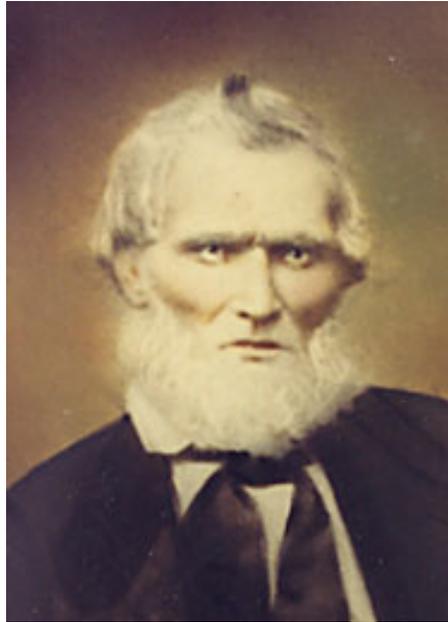

THE MORMON VOLUNTEER

Jefferson Hunt

Charles Jefferson Hunt was born in Kentucky in 1804. He became a member of the Church of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon Church) as a young man and participated in the early Mormon travels and struggles, including the Battle of Crooked River. He served in the famed Mormon Battalion as Captain of Company "A" and as assistant executive officer, being the first captain selected by Brigham Young. On this historic march of 1846-47, Captain Hunt was accompanied by his wife, Matilda, and several relatives and traveling companions.

Following his service with the Mormon Battalion, Captain Hunt was appointed by Brigham Young in 1851 to serve as a guide for Mormon pioneers headed to San Bernardino, California. He later became a member of the church's high council as well as a California state legislator. Upon returning to Utah, he led pioneering expeditions to Provo and Parowan, and became a Utah state legislator and church bishop. In 1860 he and two sons founded Huntsville, Utah, the town which bears his name to this day. Captain Hunt, a soldier and pioneer who had performed exemplary service to his battalion, church, and country, passed away in Idaho in 1879.

The fascinating story of the Mormon Battalion began in 1846, at the outset of the Mexican-American War. Looking for additional troops, President Polk authorized General Kearny's Army of the West to solicit 500 volunteers to form a Mormon Battalion. Contacted in the midst of their historic westward trek, the Mormons were surprised by the request, as they had received no governmental protection from persecution in Missouri and Illinois. They were also concerned about the safety of their families on their pioneer journey, but Brigham Young encouraged his Mormon followers to volunteer as a patriotic act for their country. Five companies totaling 543 men enlisted and embarked on a 2,000-mile journey from Council Bluffs, Iowa to San Diego, California—the longest military march in history.

The battalion departed on July 20, 1846 and reached Warner's ranch on January 21, 1847, where they camped in the valley near his trading post. Battalion journals indicate that Warner was very cooperative, providing information as well as fresh food and supplies. He also eagerly traded out fresh and well-trained horses and mules for the Battalion's animals which were exhausted and worn-out from the trek across the desert. One of the Mormon Battalion's assignments was to clear a wagon road into California, widening and leveling the original horse trail. Their success in accomplishing this objective as they journeyed westward allowed the vast migration which took place soon afterward.

The Mormon Battalion reached its destination, the San Diego Mission, the following week. The Battalion performed garrison duty at San Diego, San Luis Rey, and Los Angeles for most of the remainder of the war.

THE CIVIL WAR SKIRMISHER

Dan Showalter

(1829-1866)

Dan Showalter was a California State Assemblyman from Mariposa County when, in early 1861, he was challenged to a duel and ended up killing a fellow Assemblyman. Already a sympathizer of the Confederate cause when the Civil War broke out, this gave Showalter additional incentive to leave California. He was reputed to hold a Confederate commission and left with 18 of his troops in late 1861 to join the Confederate Army in Texas. Word of the movement of his forces reached Camp Wright, located on Warner's ranch, and Union soldiers found and captured his detachment. Although mounted and well-armed, Showalter and his followers gave up without a fight. They were taken to Camp Wright and then transferred to the prison at Fort Yuma, where they were detained for six months. Upon his release, Showalter immediately made his way to Texas where he became a lieutenant colonel in the Confederate Army and fought in the Battle of Galveston in 1863. According to reports, Colonel Showalter's alcohol problems surfaced in 1864, and he was relieved of his regimental command following the Battle of Palmetto, Texas, for drunkenness. Following the end of the Civil War, Showalter fled to Mazatlan, Mexico, and died in a barroom brawl in 1866.

California's only Civil War battle was fought by troops from Camp Wright, an outpost established at Warner's ranch near the site of the ranch house in 1861. Although no shots ended up being fired, it was the lone engagement between Union and Confederate forces.

Most Californians were sympathetic to the Union cause, but there were a number of secessionists who left to join the Confederates. Since these parties traveled the overland trail eastward to join the Southern forces in Texas, the Union Army decided to establish an outpost on Warner's ranch to put a stop to the rebel movements. Barely a week from the time Camp Wright was founded in October 1861, a large rebel party, led by State Assemblyman Dan Showalter, was reputed to be headed toward the area. Since several rebel groups had recently passed through the area, the soldiers at Camp Wright were determined to engage and defeat this party in order to set an example for future California secessionists. Several detachments from Camp Wright surprised and captured the Showalter party in an area near Mesa Grande. The rebels were first taken to Camp Wright and later transferred to prison at Fort Yuma, where they were released several months later upon convincing authorities of their allegiance. In addition to Showalter, the other members of his party thereupon reportedly continued their journey to join the Confederacy.

Although the site of Camp Wright was relocated shortly after the “battle” for the remainder of the war, Warner’s ranch can claim the distinction as being the site of the only military action taken by the Union Army in California during the Civil War.

THE CATTLE BARON

George Sawday

George Sawday was born on October 6, 1876 in Julian. The son of a British immigrant and pioneer in the Witch Creek area near Santa Ysabel, Sawday built a vast cattle ranching empire across Southern California, with Warner's ranch as his centerpiece. Upon marrying Emily Crouch of Oceanside, the daughter of another British immigrant, he set about building his personal residence in Witch Creek where his two daughters were raised.

Sawday's cattle holdings ranged from the Imperial Valley to the San Diego coast. He was a major cattle buyer throughout Southern California, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah. Although a private man who avoided the limelight, he was a long-time leader and officer of the California Cattlemen's Association. He died on December 22, 1949 in La Jolla at the age of 73.

The original Warner's ranch passed through several owners in the late 19th to early 20th century, but always remained a major cattle operation with the ranch house site as its headquarters. From 1869 to 1888, it was owned by ex-California governor John Downey, who made the ranch world-famous for its high quality wool. This premium wool was produced by washing the sheep prior to shearing with water from soda springs located on the ranch.

From 1888 to 1911, the ranch was operated by Walter Vail (of present day Vail Ranch fame), and he enlisted cattlemen such as James Knight and Samuel Taylor to live in the ranch house and manage the ranch operations. During the height of the ranching operations around the turn of the twentieth century, tens of thousands of sheep, horse and cattle foraged on Warner's ranch, fattening on the abundant grass and water around the ranch house before being driven to market in Los Angeles.

In 1911, George Sawday took over the ranch and operated it as the largest cattle ranch in Southern California and one of the largest in the West. During Sawday's time, the ranch became synonymous with the wild west and its hard-working cowboys. Will Rogers stayed at the ranch house in the 1930's, and was said to have been interested in buying the ranch before he passed away. John Wayne was familiar with George Sawday and his ranch house as well, and he wore a hat given to him by Sawday in several of his cowboy movies.

Although Lake Henshaw was built on the Warner Ranch in 1922 and ranch ownership passed to the Vista Irrigation District in 1946, the Sawday family operated its cattle operation until 1960, when the ranch house was abandoned.

IN CONCLUSION

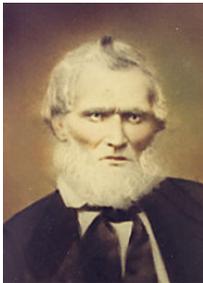

The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House which still stands today bears the name of the two main actors in its history, J. J. Warner and Vicenta Carrillo. Although the house and barn may have been part of the set, the ranch was the stage and the tumultuous times formed the backdrop of the fascinating theater that unfolded here during the middle of the nineteenth century. The Warner-Carrillo Ranch House represents a crossroads, both literally and figuratively, in California history, and symbolizes the convergence of historical themes relating to pioneers, soldiers, cowboys, Native Americans, Latinos, and women in the settling of the Old West.

The objective of the Warner-Carrillo Ranch House Restoration Project is to restore this significant landmark, including the house and barn, to a condition where the buildings can be preserved for future generations and enjoyed by the public. The house is a unique Mexican period adobe with wooden extensions, and the barn is the last hand-hewn timber barn standing in San Diego County. The barn also contains the remains of the original adobe corral, preserved because the barn was built over it. The interior of the house contains unique wood planking and stretched canvas ceilings called mantas. The project required extensive restoration of the adobe walls, roof, and interior rooms of the house.

In addition to the physical restoration, the project restoration plan includes the establishment of an interpretive center where visitors can learn about and experience the historical themes associated with the landmark. Probably due to historical biases over the years, the contributions of Latinos, women, and native Americans have been neglected as they relate to the history of the ranch house. The ranch house is one of the few remaining landmarks associated with unique historical groups and events, such as the Mormon Battalion and the Butterfield Stage, and the project also highlights these historical contributors. Now that it has been open to the public, the restored ranch house in its strategic location is an educational destination for all types of visitors, particularly the thousands of schoolchildren throughout Southern California in their study of California history.

Donations and grants have enabled the restoration of the historic ranch house and the stabilization of the historic barn. Additional funding is desperately needed in order to restore the exterior and interior of the barn, and to recreate the furnishings, grounds and surroundings associated with the significant historical period of the ranch house and barn. STAFF REPORT

Agenda Item: 10

Board Meeting Date: June 1, 2016
Prepared By: Brett Hodgkiss
Reviewed By: Eldon Boone
Approved By: Roy Coox

SUBJECT: LOVE TAP! CAMPAIGN

RECOMMENDATION: Receive an update on the District's drink tap water campaign, Love Tap!

PRIOR BOARD ACTION: The Board received an informational report from the Public Affairs Committee on the Love Tap! campaign on March 5, 2014.

FISCAL IMPACT: Since the program's inception, the District has spent approximately $38,000 (purchase and installation of hydration stations, portable hydration station, water bottles, brochures, etc.) on the Love Tap! campaign.

SUMMARY: The tap is a source of high quality drinking water that is a great value, especially when compared to the cost of bottled water. The District rigorously tests its water to ensure it complies with stringent state and federal water quality standards that meet or exceed those for bottled water. Yet, many customers purchase bottled water because they are concerned that tap water is not safe to drink.

The goal of the District's drink tap water campaign, Love Tap!, is to let customers know that tap water is safe to drink and that the choice to drink bottled water should be based on that factor. To accomplish this objective, the District deployed a two-pronged outreach strategy that involved making the community aware of the benefits of drinking tap water and making it easy and convenient for them to access by installing water bottle filling stations (called hydration stations) at schools and city recreational facilities.

DETAILED REPORT: In an effort to raise awareness about the quality and value of tap water, the District launched its Love Tap! campaign in spring 2014. The official kick-off of the Love Tap! campaign came in May 2014 at the Vista Strawberry Festival, where the band, TapWater, appeared courtesy of the District and spread the message about drinking tap water as part of their concert. The District also had a booth at the event where staff handed out Love Tap! reusable water bottles that could be filled at our portable hydration station.

Since that time, the District has participated in various community events, including the Taste of Vista and City of Vista Summer Fun Fest event, to promote Love Tap! District staff has also made presentations at the North County Water Summit, to the Vista city council, and to Vista Unified School District parent and teacher groups as well as various community organizations. The District plans to continue promoting Love Tap! through its speakers bureau and participation in community events.

Based on the success of getting children to teach their parents about water conservation, the District recognized that a key demographic to be reached is school children. The District worked with the Vista Unified School District to install hydration stations in three public schools: Breeze Hill Elementary School, Vista Innovation and Design Academy, and Rancho Buena Vista High School. At Breeze Hill, the District coupled the installation of the hydration station with the distribution of refillable water bottles to all students and assembly presentations, teaching the children about the benefits of drinking tap water.

The hydration stations have been so well received at the schools where they have been installed that the school district has recently let the District know that it will be installing hydration stations at every school within the school district and incorporate them in their branded nutrition program. The school district has indicated that they plan to begin the installation of hydration stations this summer. Individual school parent-teacher associations (PTA's) have also contacted the District for information and assistance in acquiring and promoting hydration stations. The District has offered to make Love Tap! presentations at school assemblies and at school district meetings in support of the school district's efforts.

The District has also partnered with the City of Vista to install hydration stations at two of the City's busiest parks at Jim Porter Park Recreation Center located at Brengle Terrace Park and the Vista Sports Park. According to City staff, the hydration stations have been well received by park users. City staff has said that they will consider installing hydration stations in lieu of new drinking fountains at other City facilities in the future.

The District's mission is to provide the community with a high quality, affordable and reliable source of water. The Love Tap! campaign provides the District with a unique opportunity to connect with our customers and the public and to directly communicate who we are and the services that we provide. In addition to the school district and the city, the District has received numerous inquiries from businesses and community organizations about the hydration stations (the school district calls them "Love Tap units") and how to get them installed at their locations. The Love Tap! campaign has earned accolades from customers, community groups and other agencies and the District will continue to review and update the campaign to build on its successes and keep its messaging relevant and memorable.

Refillable and environmentally friendly water bottles can make hydration portable as well as inexpensive. Hydration stations (such as the one pictured below) make it much more convenient to fill up and take your hydration to go!
